Parent Corner

This adventure helps your Scout get ready to join a Scouts BSA troop by learning about what is like to be a member, trying out the patrol method, and practicing or learning some scout skills.

The standard of completion for Cub Scout advancement is "Do Your Best," so given the current circumstances, look at the purpose behind the requirements and do your best to help your Scout learn about Scouts BSA and the patrol method.

Dens can visit a virtual troop meeting to see the patrol method and youth leadership in action and act as a patrol during the meeting. One recommended idea for the outing is to participate in a Troop virtual campout or virtual game. Plenty of opportunities to Do Your Best to meet the intention of the requirement.

Read through the worksheet before you go so you know what to look for during the meeting and what questions to ask.

When you join a troop and get your new handbook, it will be your personal record of advancement. It is your responsibility to ask for and obtain the necessary signoffs when you are tested.

- 1. Explain the patrol method. Describe the types of patrols that might be part of a troop.

With your Webelos den leader, parent, or guardian, participate in a troop's campout or other outdoor activity. Use the patrol method while on the outing. If there are no in-person campouts or outdoor activities due to Covid-19, do your best to find a suitable substitute like a troop's virtual camp-out or an online activity such as a competition or game where you can practice the patrol method.

The Patrol Method

A Scout patrol is a small team of normally four to eight members where Scouts learn skills together, share responsibilities and take on leadership roles. Learn more in the beginner's guide to patrols article.

Pee Wee Says

In an ideal troop meeting, the only time an adult says anything is when the Scoutmaster gives the Scoutmaster's Minute. Other than that, the meeting is run by the Scouts themselves. The same thing is true for hikes, campouts, service projects and everything else.

Adult leaders are there, of course, but they're more like coaches. They train the youth leaders and then stand on the sidelines watching them in action.

Parent Corner

Work with your fellow AOLs or Webelos to form your patrol. If your Scout does not have other AOLs or Webelos to work on this with, contact a local Troop to have your Webelos join in with a patrol for a month to learn about the patrol method.
